

Harlan man electrocuted in accident on his farm

A rural Harlan man died in an accident on his farm Saturday afternoon.

Michael Gross, 49, had been fixing a hog feeder using an electric drill that was powered by an extension cord.

He was climbing over a gate when the drill apparently shorted out at about 3:15 p.m.

Gross was taken to Myrtue Memorial Hospital in Harlan, where he was pronounced dead.