A prosperous farmer and stock-raiser of Bloomfield Township Frank L. Bailey has a business record of which any man might well be proud. He is a native of Wisconsin and was born in October, 1860, a son of Daniel C. and Susan (Dale), Bailey, the former born in Canada and the latter in the state of Vermont. The father came to Wisconsin in 1855 and purchased forty acres of land, also renting more land, all of which he cultivated until 1872, when he sold out and joined in the movement westward. In Nebraska he took up a homestead and timber claim under the United States government laws, embracing altogether three hundred and twenty acres, which he proceeded to improve by erecting a comfortable house, substantial barns and outbuildings, etc., making his place one of the most desirable in that section. He continued upon his farm until his death, which occurred in May, 1907, the beloved wife and mother being called away in October of the year following. Mr. Bailey was a man of excellent character and industrious habits, who gained the confidence and respect of all with whom he came into contact.

Frank L. Bailey, of this review, was reared in Wisconsin and Nebraska and received his preliminary education in the district schools. He assisted his father in work in the fields as he grew up and early acquired a taste for farming that had an important effect in shaping his career. After completing the course in the public schools he entered Nebraska Wesleyan University at Lincoln, Nebraska, from which he was graduated in 1895. He engaged in business with his brothers on the home farm for four years after leaving college, and then, having decided to begin upon his own account, came to Iowa and purchased eighty acres in Bloomfield Township, upon which he has since lived. He has made many improvements upon his farm, which he has developed into one of the attractive properties of the neighborhood. Aside from his agricultural interests he is a stockholder in the Farmers Telephone Company, whose line extends from Valley Junction to Orillia, Iowa.

On the 23rd day of March, 1899, Mr. Bailey was united in marriage to Miss Mamie Taskett, a daughter of Henry and Pamelia (Alton) Taskett, both of whom were born in New York. They came to Iowa and settled upon a farm, where they spent the remainder of their lives, the father being called away in 1902. Mr. Taskett was a harness maker by trade, but he devoted his entire attention to farming after his arrival in this state. Mrs. Bailey departed this life April 17, 1906, and Mr. Bailey was again married in December, 1909, the lady of his choice being Miss Harriet Moulton. She was born in Wisconsin in 1869, a daughter of George H. and Henrietta (Carpenter) Moulton, the father being a native of Canada and the mother of New York State. They were married in Wisconsin and Mr. Moulton entered the ministry. In 1885 they removed to Nebraska, in which state Mr. Moulton preached with general acceptance until his death, which occurred November 20, 1910. The mother is still living in Nebraska. Mrs. Bailey is a highly educated lady, having possessed advantages of attendance at the Nebraska Wesleyan University at Lincoln, Nebraska.

Politically, Mr. Bailey is not affiliated with any of the party organizations, as he prefers to cast his ballot for the man and also to take into careful consideration the issues at stake when he goes to the polls. He belongs to that large and increasing body of citizens who reserve their decision until the hour of action arrives. In religious belief he and his wife are thoroughly in sympathy with the doctrines of the Methodist church and are staunch supporters of that organization.

He possessed excellent opportunities of education and has been able in the course of his active career to make practical use of the knowledge received from books. He is a close observer, a constant student and an intelligent and progressive citizen, his influence always being in favor of the promotion of the highest interest of the community. He and his wife have many friends in Polk County and they are gladly accorded the hospitality of the best homes in this section.
